

Dr. Christophe Juliet
Redding Walmart
New England College of Optometry

Working with FirstSight for only a year, Dr. Juliet has successfully managed the Redding Walmart office in northern California. He has many interests including Astronomy, Quantum Physics, and playing chess. When asked what his passion is, Dr. Juliet states: "I am passionate about helping people who I encounter in life any way I can. I believe we are all connected and that the better others fair in life is directly related to how well we live." Dr. Juliet practices this philosophy in his daily interactions with patients: "Some patients...just require an ear, someone they can confide in, and I am happy to help when that need arises." In addition to shaking every patient's hand, he takes the time to make patients feel comfortable and always spends extra time answering any questions they may have related to eye health and glasses or contact lenses at the end of the exam.

Dr. Juliet admits that it is a struggle working in a retail environment: "Some patients feel more confident with Optometrists working in a medical building, but quite honestly there is no difference in care. We are held to the same standard." He makes a point to thank new patients for giving his practice a chance and stepping out of their comfort zones. The implementation of iRecords (FirstSight's online record storage system) and scanning of patient charts also helps to instill confidence in his patients. "I no longer have a messy folded chart to unfurl and look through. Patients do not have to watch as we try to find that elusive file...I can only print the appropriate documents needed" which leads to a more organized work area and more professional exam.

Despite the struggles and perception of working in a retail environment, Dr. Juliet feels that FirstSight is a great place to work and offers Optometrists the autonomy to manage patient care for what is in the best interest of his patients.

Thank you for your hard work and dedication Dr. Juliet!
